Photoshop is mainly an image-editing program, but you can use it to make a variety of other graphic creations, such as animated GIFs. See Book IV Chapter 4 for information on how to create GIFs from photographs. Making Adjustments As with most programs, Photoshop's tool palette has most of the tools you need to manipulate a photo or a graphic. In the Toolbox, you can find standard controls that apply to the layers of a photo, as well as additional controls that you can apply to other elements, such as text. The most important and useful controls are in the Layers palette. You have a large collection of standard controls in the Toolbox and a small collection in the Layers palette. The Layers palette shows the currently active layers and allows you to apply a tool to a selected layer or layers. It also allows you to open dialog boxes that ask you to specify which layer you want to manipulate. You can use standard controls and the tools that come with Photoshop to change an image in these ways: Modify the pixel's color using standard tools in the Toolbox, such as the Dodge, Burn, and Multiply tools, as well as the Hue/Saturation and Colorize tools. For example, you can use the Burn tool to remove parts of an image. By using the Multiply tool and changing its blend mode to Overlay, you can add a dark overlay to the image that produces a black-and-white effect. Reduce the size of an image by changing its resolution. Resolution reduction can also be achieved by using the Save for Web feature. See Book III, Chapter 2, for more on Save for Web. Create separations by converting an image to a black-and-white or grayscale. Enhance or straighten an image. Correct or remove objects that don't belong in the image. You can also use the Quick Selection tool to select a small area in an image, and then you can use standard controls or the tools in the Toolbox to modify that section of the image. When you use the Color Picker or the Dropper tool, the editing dialog box appears to help you specify the color or brush size. (Book III, Chapter 1 explains how to use these tools.) When you use the standard tools in the Toolbox, a dialog box appears so that you can specify the percentage of the area that should be changed. For example, the

A former substitute teacher who was convicted of having a sexual affair with a 15-year-old student on three occasions has been found dead on a Utah highway. Regina Rebecca Johnson died on her way to a math class at the Provo High School where she used to be a substitute teacher, according to the Daily Herald. Authorities said that it is likely Johnson, 23, overdosed and accidentally drove off the road while driving in Lehi, a suburb of Salt Lake City. Provo Police confirmed to The Daily Herald that Johnson's car was found off the road with the occupant inside and said that her death is considered a suicide. Johnson was arrested in July 2017 after an investigation into the sexual encounters with the 15-year-old student. She admitted to having a sexual relationship with the student, who was one of her students at the time. Johnson, who was 17 at the time of the alleged encounters, was a substitute teacher at the high school. The Utah Department of Public Safety released a statement regarding her death and said that it is not in connection with the charges she pleaded guilty to. "Information related to this death is preliminary and subject to change pending the outcome of our investigation," the statement said. "We are deeply saddened by the tragic passing of substitute teacher and former member of our staff Regina Rebecca Johnson," Provo Mayor John Curtis said in a statement. "She was a dedicated member of our community and was deeply loved by the high school. "Our thoughts and prayers are with her family and loved ones during this extremely difficult time. "Regina's passion and energy was evident as a substitute teacher and could be seen as she led students in their classroom. "The safety and welfare of our students is a top priority to Provo City School District." It's unknown how long Johnson had to teach at the school. After Johnson was arrested in August 2017, she said she used to visit the boy's home and asked to meet him. "It was the first time [the boy] had ever had a grown-up's phone call," Johnson said in an interview with KUTV, a Utah NBC affiliate. "I remember talking to him about his life, what he was passionate about and I remember being so inspired by him." The US Department of Justice said that she sent him nude images of herself
